Why Use Background Checks?

It is important to feel secure about the people with whom you enter into relationships. The news media all too frequently provide examples of individuals who take advantage of relationships which are based on trust. In situations where individuals are potentially being offered positions of trust, especially with vulnerable individuals, we recommend the use of background checks as an important tool in making an informed decision.

What Type of Check is Right?

Background checks provide the necessary information to make an informed decision. When choosing the background check right for you, consider:

- risk level of potential victims (i.e. children, handicapped, elderly, property)
- level of supervision provided
- type of information a report provides

How Can I Get a Check?

Visit the Minnesota Bureau of Criminal Apprehension

The MBCA provides two types of criminal history background checks:

FREE CHECKS - provide a search of public criminal convictions. Data on criminal convictions is public for 15 years after completion of the sentence. This search can be completed on-line.

MBCA CHECKS - provide a search of public and private criminal history data. This search requires a signed consent from the subject of the search, and may only be obtained by mail or in person. The fee for this search is $15.

Keeping Youth Safe

In developing volunteer screening procedures, BE AWARE of the level of risk for activities, especially if working with youth program leaders and/or coaches.

Risk assessment criteria that might be used include:

Low Risk – activities in public areas and always parental involvement

Medium Risk – in private home with only one adult supervising a group of adolescents

High Risk – activities in isolated areas, no parents, or one adult and one child

Screening procedures for youth program leaders/coaches in medium and high risk situations should include background checks.
